25X1 1. Approximately 7 kilometers east of Kołobrzeg (Kolberg) along the Baltic Sea coast, between the villages Podczele (Bodenhagen) and Kozie Gory (Ziegenberg) is located an airfield originally built by the Germans and is now being maintained by the Soviet Air Force.

2. The field itself is about 1.5 sq. km. in area, is surrounded by a marshy area, and has irregular boundaries. It is bounded on the south by a highway and a railway line, each of which has a spur line to the field.
3. On the west side of the field are located the command and administration (radio station) buildings. One road from the highway leads to this area and the other to the six concrete-reinforced underground shelters where fuel and ammunition are stored in large quantities.
4. The hangars are located at the east end of the field. Four of the five hangars shown are in good condition, and the fifth is being rapidly rebuilt.
5. The two runways laid out in the east-west and north-south directions are about 1000 meters long and 50 meters wide. The surface and construction are of concrete, further described as of a dark color.
6. No anti-aircraft defense or other installations were observed within the area two-engine bombers were stationed at this field. Their activities appeared to be normal flying exercises and bombing practice conducted against targets at sea.

8. The German civilians are being evacuated from the village of Bodenhagen, which is to be used as a living quarters for the Russian air force personnel and their families stationed at the Kolobrzeg field.
9. The fuel supply for the planes is normally brought from the harbor of Kolobrzeg by petroleum trucks or less frequently via rail from inside Poland.
